If you are one of those who are curious by nature, NASA has a YouTube channel full of interesting videos, and among them is a live broadcast of the International Space Station (ISS). Recently, the ISS was moving at an undetermined location on Earth, and International Space Station captured a fleet of hundreds of UFOs

Gorden McKenna was the one who detected these anomalies in space and posted a video on April 2 that showed the ufos moving towards the earth

"Fleet (hundreds) of UFOs pass through the ISS," says the video description.

As McKenna himself explained, he was watching the space station's camera live when he observed the presence of strange objects moving towards earth. At first he thought they might be satellites or meteorites, but their speed increased, and after a few minutes they disappeared without a trace.

And as expected, the video has caused all kinds of reactions on social networks. There were many who thought that it could be a top-secret fleet of alien technology ships from the United States Air Force, more specifically the Space Force.

Recall that, in late 2019, Donald Trump described space as the "newest domain in the world to fight a war." The Space Force must help deter aggression and control the "highest advantage position."

The intention of this new military branch is to protect US facilities. in space, like satellites that are used for communication and surveillance. The Space Force will build on the work of the existing US Space Command. (SpaceCom), which was created in August to manage US military operations. in the space.

But skeptics offered other explanations. They said it appears to correspond to Earth, with thunderstorms at first and also city lights. Others suggested that it could be meteorites, and even Starlink satellites, sent by Elon Musk's SpaceX since its launch in 2018 that have caused many people to mistake them for UFO sightings.

Although there is another possibility. the current coronavirus pandemic will be the beginning of an extraterrestrial invasion. It would all start with a virus that simply eradicates a large part of the planet's population and reduces any possibility of defense. Then it would be a war between weakened humans and aliens.

Today the coronavirus pandemic is completely uncontrolled. The death toll exceeds 60,000 and there are more than 1 million positive cases in the world. The truth is that more and more people are convinced that the coronavirus pandemic hides something much more sinister, and with the population in mandatory confinement in their homes, this would be the ideal time to start the alien invasion.

What do you think about the video of the ISS? Do you think this is a UFO fleet approaching Earth? Is it the beginning of an alien invasion?
